Vocational Service ~ Program Building

- By Rotary China Historian Herbert K. Lau (劉敬恒)

It has been said by Rotarians that vocational service or service through the medium of vocation is the first principle upon which Rotary exists. Further, that Rotary's future as a permanent institution depends upon its contribution to that phase of activity. With this in mind let us review the activity of Rotary clubs in promoting this all important phase of Rotary. Is it not a fact that clubs have neglected this work, the very heart of the Rotary movement, in favor of other fields already occupied by other organizations which quite frequently are better equipped to do the job? What then, has been the cause of this reaction to vocational service, and what can be done to make vocational service attractive?

Rotarians who have studied these problems have offered varying opinions. Some believe that the average club member is satisfied with his own conduct in business and, therefore, does not feel the need for such an activity in Rotary.

Some believe that club members actually resent the subject because it deals with the way in which they conduct their businesses which to them is a private matter. A large group believes very firmly that the field of vocational service has never been thoroughly explored and that there are many avenues of this subject little known at this time which will appeal to the average Rotarian.

Efforts have been made by program building bodies to discover new ways of approaching the subject to inspire Rotarians to activity. These efforts have been many and varied and have resulted in bringing vocational service to the position it now occupies. The methods thus far employed have been greatly handicapped by the fact that vocational service committees are short-lived and are not in existence long enough to become fully acquainted with much detailed knowledge of the technical phases of the subject. As a result, the theoretical side of the subject has enjoyed careful attention, but the practical side, the one in which the appeal to the business person must be found, has been neglected. The time has now come when the need is felt for elevating vocational service to the position in Rotary that it deserves and which must be reached if the movement is to continue to grow as it has in the past.

One of the first steps in this movement has been inaugurated by the Vocational Service Committee by the Rotary International. This Committee is of the opinion that the vocational service program should retain all of the fundamentals of vocational service, and at the same time be made as practical as possible bringing out the point that the goal of all business is profit and that the application of the ideal of service in business will result in success expressed in monetary terms.

Vocational Service is one of Rotary's Avenues of Service. Vocational Service calls every Rotarian to:

- Aspire to high ethical standards in their occupation;
- Recognize the worthiness of all useful occupations, and;
- Contribute their vocational talents to the problems and needs of society.

Rotarians, clubs, and districts should implement the following strategies in their support of Vocational Service:

- Strengthen the emphasis on vocation and classification in new member recruitment and induction.
- Identify means of emphasizing vocation in club activities.
- Create a stronger emphasis on business networking with integrity in Rotary at the club and district level.
- Focus more attention on business networking with integrity as a means of attracting and mentoring the new generation.
- Emphasize the connection between the Four Way Test and《The Rotarian Code of Conduct》and their importance to the values of Rotary.

When professionals join a Rotary club, they do so as a representative of their classification – their particular business or profession.

Rotarians have the dual responsibility of representing their vocation within the club and exemplifying the ideals of Rotary within the workplace.

One of the central goals of Vocational Service is to promote and advance Rotary's high ethical standards. Two useful tools Rotarians have to assess these standards are《The Four-Way Test》and《The Rotarian Code of Conduct》.

January is Vocational Service Month

2018-19 Presidential Theme: Back to Basic

By RCS President, Linnet Kwok

Linnet Kwok – President

I want this year to focus on Rotary's core values, Fellowship and Service.

With fellowship we create good service projects and through service we develop long lasting friendships. They are intertwined.

The arrows represents fellowship and service crisscrossing each other. The arrows also form a globe as we are an international organization and an international club.

RCS has over 20 nationalities. To create fellowship we need members, more members to deliver service projects and more members to grow the club.

To grow the club we need to work on our youth and PR. Many people don't know us or think we are a group of old middle age Anglo Saxon males! On the contrary, we are very diversified.

Basic Info of our Club

First chartered on 1 October 1919
 Rechartered on 8 February 2006
 Number of active Members – 67
 Honorary Members – 4
